GREETINGS FROM PRESIDENT F. S. HARRIS

It is a great pleasure for me to extend greetings to the members of the Alumni Association of the College. After twenty-four years of absence from the Institution I return full of enthusiasm for the work here. The school year has opened with a noteworthy increase in enrollment. On the first day the enrollment was 53 percent ahead of the first day last year. We are thrilled by the fact that many of our boys are back from the Service and can now resume their college education.

Never was the Institution in better condition to serve the students who come to it. The war years have brought much additional equipment which was made available through the various training programs which were conducted here. This equipment will be valuable for the men who are now coming back to resume their education. The war years have clarified many of the objectives of education. The needs of the country are clearer than they were before. We can, therefore, settle right down to the business of preparing young people for service to the country. Most of these young people are also much clearer in their own ideas as to what they want to do. I am, therefore, looking for greater efficiency in education in the next few years.

While the Institution is well equipped, it has some very distinct needs. We must list first the need of better housing facilities for the students. Certainly we should have a number of dormitories in the very near future. We also have plans for an adequate auditorium and class room building. With the development of so many laboratories we find ourselves somewhat short in class rooms, and we hope that this need will be remedied by a building which we hope can be erected in the very near future in the area between the Field House and Widtsoe Hall. Plans are also being laid for considerable extension of the scientific facilities. Preliminary plans have been drawn for buildings to the north of the Animal Industry and Plant Industry buildings, and east of Widtsoe Hall. It is planned to have this more technical work developed in this general area. We are also looking to the erection of a student hall for extra-curricular activities in the area at the foot of the hill and just south of the main entrance. This building would house the non-academic student activities.

We shall welcome suggestions from alumni of the College concerning improvements which they would like to have made at the Institution. We very much desire to render to the State the service of an institution of this kind should render. If all former students of the College unite in supporting the program, nothing can hinder the growth of the Institution.

1945-46 Alumni Council Nominees

To increase the interest of all classes and geographic areas candidates were chosen in an attempt to represent both groups. It is suggested that members consider this fact when voting for nominees. Ballots will be mailed to all paid members and must be returned not later than March 1, 1946.

Ralph S. Blackham, '40, one of the state's leading turkey growers, majored in poultry husbandry. At the present time is manager of the Moroni Feed company, a cooperative institution, has been president of the State Turkey Growers Association, and worked for Prof. Carl Frischknecht in the Utah Extension service for one year. Before enrolling at USAC, was a student at Snow Junior college and served as student-body president and was prominent in other activities.

Will W. Bowman, '23, publicity counsel for various Utah corporations, including Utah Power & Light Company, Salt Lake City. Former managing editor of the Salt Lake Tribune, the Salt Lake Telegram and Ogden Standard-Examiner, daily newspapers. Majored in English, minored in military science and tactics at USAC and was graduated from Columbia University school of journalism in 1927. At USAC was cheer leader three years, a track letterman, a member of the football team, BeNo club, Ag club, columnist for Student Life, sports editor for Buzzer, member of Scabbard and Blade, Sigma Alpha and Sigma Chi.

William J. Bond, '17, has been superintendent of schools in Duchesne district since 1917. Before going to Duchesne, he was principal of Wasatch high school at Heber for thirteen years. Formerly a principal at North Summit high school, Supt. Bond also taught industrial arts there. He has taught school at Richmond, Utah, and at Midway. His wife is the former Hazel Thomas and they have four children.

Fredrick Froerer, '11, president of the Realty-Insurance Company and the Ogden Home Builders Company, has been in the real estate and insurance business in Ogden since November 1914. Following graduation from USAC he went to Richmond, Utah, and started the Cache Valley Cow Testing Association. Later he taught in both Brigham and Manti high schools. While at College he served as president of the Ag Club, played football, was manager of the basketball team and won an "A" in track work.

Ray D. Garner, '24, was in the school of agriculture with a major in animal husbandry. He was a native of Rexburg, Idaho. Prominent in music circles, he took the lead role in college operas, was a member of the college male quartette and male glee club; on the stock judging team for two years, a member of Pi Zeta Pi and Phi Kappa Phi. Since graduation, Mr. Garner has taught agriculture at Cowley, Wyoming, Parowan high school, and at present is instructor in agriculture at Dixie Junior College, St. George, Utah. A master's degree was awarded in 1937. Ray is married and has a family of future Aggies.

Mary Leone Haight, '44, is employed by the Bank of Southern Utah, Cedar City, as a secretary to the cashier. She is also secretary of the Iron County Alumni Chapter. While attending USAC, she was active in music and intramural activities, a member of the Chi Omega sorority and Phi Kappa Phi.

David C. Jensen, '33, majored in education and taught chemistry and biology at Burley, Idaho, high school. He entered the navy April 15, 1944 and served as PhM3/c at San Diego, California. Since his discharge, Mr. Jensen has been engaged in the life insurance business in Idaho. He is married and has a son and daughter. He has been a loyal supporter of the college and the Alumni Association.

Virginia Kottor McKinlay, '31, taught secretarial science at Rick's College, Rexburg, Idaho, for three and a half years after graduation. Following this, she received a civil service appointment with the Soil Conservation Service as a private secretary at California Technical Institute at Pasadena. During this period, Mrs. McKinlay did graduate work at the University of Southern California. A member of Sorosis, while in college, she served on the A. W. S. Council for four years, was in the spring festival three years, orchestra three years, and on the senior gift committee. Virginia married Robert McKinlay and they live at Richfield, Utah.

Pernecy Lenkersdorfer Melville, '29 at present a housewife and mother at Fillmore, Utah, was a graduate in the school of Home Economics with a major in textiles. She taught in the Fillmore high school and has been active in alumni local association work. While in College, Mrs. Melville was fond of college sports and participated actively in tennis and swimming.

S. Grover Rich, '05, state rationing officer for Utah, was formerly with Farm Security Administration in Washington, D. C., and Oakland, California. In 1939, he was Executive Vice-President and Manager Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation and has wide experience with the agricultural and livestock interests of Utah and the West. Mr. Rich was a cadet officer, manager of the football team and varsity debater while on the campus. Mrs. Rich is the former Mildred Forgeon '06. Both are life members of the Alumni Association.

Charles J. Sorenson, '06, research associate professor of entomology, Utah Agricultural Experiment station, is well known throughout the west for his research work in the field of entomology, especially in connection with alfalfa seed production. He did graduate work at the Marine Biological laboratory, Washington State university, University of California and received his MS degree from USAC in 1927. He is a member of several honor scientific and agricultural organizations and is the author of 33 publications. He has been connected with USAC since 1914 as an instructor. A life member of the Alumni Association, he has two sons both graduates of the USAC.

Fred A. Swalberg, '36, majored in animal husbandry, and now owns and operates feed mill and hatchery at Marysvale, Utah, annually produces 10,000 turkeys as well as cattle, sheep and hogs and carries on general farming. He is bishop of the Marysvale ward and is serving his second term on the local school as president. His wife is the former Helen Richards, '36, and both are life members of the Alumni Association.

Warren G. Swendsen, '04, of Boise, Idaho, majored in civil engineering and served with the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation and investigated construction work in Utah, Idaho and Colorado. He was employed by a leading power company to supervise construction of hydro-electric power plants and 1912-1919 was in general engineering practice in the western states. In 1919, Mr. Swendsen became engineer for the state of Idaho, director of water resources and sanitary engineer for the U. S. Public Health Service in Idaho. From district manager of a sugar company he became president and manager of Intermountain Equipment Company, Boise, Idaho.

William DeLos Watkins, '28, owner and operator of an ice cream plant, serves his three stores in Utah County in addition to operating a sporting store in Lehi. While at USAC he was student body president, basketball captain, member of track team, Dairy Club president and Delta Kappa Phi president.

A. Adrian Wright, '32, is executive officer for Utah of the Office of Price Administration. Is a past president of the Salt Lake alumni association, chapter president of the Yale Investment Company, active in LDS affairs of the Yalecrest ward. He is a member of the Salt Lake junior chamber of commerce and former member of the Logan Rotary club. While at USAC, he was editor of the Buzzer, chapter member of Blue Key, service fraternity, member of Intercollegiate Knights, member of pep band and college glee club and secretary of the commerce fraternity.

Annual Report USAC Alumni Association

This is a summary of the report made by the executive secretary to the Alumni Council at its annual meeting June 9, 1945. It is included in this issue of the Quarterly to apprise members of progress made during the past year.

Alumni President is Member of Board of Trustees

Leading all other achievements in importance was the enactment of Senate Bill 96 by the 1945 legislature. This law makes the Alumni Association president an ex-office member of the Board of Trustees of the College.

The Quarterly and Bulletins

Our official organ was published four times during the year and was mailed to all Aggies (graduates and former students in the armed forces). The October number to all graduates and subsequent issues to paid members only. Sorry that finances do not permit sending every issue to all graduates. Each of the seven schools of the College was featured in special articles during the year.

Regional Development

Local alumni chapters were organized in Beaver County, Melba T. Yardley, '30, president; Iron County, Gronway R. Parry, '14, president; San Pete County, Sam Gordon, '31, president; Juab County, Helen Bailey Jones, C'29, president; Washington County, Ray D. Garner, '24, president; and Sevier County, Virginia Kotter McKinley, '31, temporary chairman. Reorganizations were perfected in Denver, Lloyd W. Rawlins, C'32, president and Salt Lake City, Steve Dunford, '36, president. The officers in Utah County, A. P. Warnick, '14, president agreed to hold-over.

High School Relations

Alumni in those areas, visited by the members of the USAC music department were invited to visit the local high school and enjoy the musical programs presented. Council members and local presidents made many visits to high school graduates to induce them to attend USAC.

New Office

In March the College Administration provided more commodious quarters for the Association when our office was moved to Main 130 directly across the hall from the registrar.

Public Relations

An attempt was made to have at least one article about Alumni or Alumni activities in the state press daily. While this goal of an article every day was not reached we averaged considerably more than an article daily.

Your executive secretary delivered fifteen speeches to clubs and organizations during the year. Close relationships were maintained with civic clubs and local businessmen.

Direct Service to the College

Your executive secretary taught extension classes in Morgan, Ogden, Beaver, Milford, Clearfield, Utah and Preston, Idaho during the year. One class in psychology was taught during the fall and winter quarters and two classes during the summer session.

Membership on the Dean's and Director's Council, High School Relations committee, Committee on G I's, Student Council and Committee on memorials made possible effective coordination between the Alumni Association and the College Administration. (Since July 1, 1945 membership on the above committees, except Student Council, has been terminated by the administration).

The executive secretary expresses his deep appreciation for the splendid support given by the executive committee, the Council and the administration during the past fiscal year.

Life Memberships

During the fiscal year July 1, 1944 to June 30, 1945, there were 113 life memberships paid in full. The preceding year was the second best in Alumni history when 44 Alumni took out life memberships. The close of the year showed a grand total of 249 life members paid in full.

USAC Serves Utah Agriculture

History Reviewed

The service an agricultural college might render to the citizens of the state was undoubtedly visualized by Anton H. Lund who introduced a bill into the Territorial Legislature in 1888 for the establishment of "an agricultural college and experiment station." President Lund had had experience with the agricultural schools of Denmark, hence he could see the benefits to be derived from such a school in Utah.

Financial support from the federal government was available under the Morrill Act of 1862. And with the passage of the Hatch Act by the federal congress in 1887 for the support of an agricultural experiment station in each state the Utah legislators were willing to approve the Lund bill.

The college had a small beginning but there was no delay in getting a substantial agricultural program under way. Under the able leadership of J. W. Sanborn as Director of the Experiment Station, together with two other staff members, thirty-six independent lines of investigation were started the first season on the 93-acre tract of land which is now on the Campus. The experiments "centered around plant nutrition and growth" and the practical problems of irrigation, tillage, rotation and fertilization were studied by scientific methods.

In the fall of the same year, 1890, the College opened its doors to students, offering a "liberal and practical education." Twenty-two students enrolled the first year. The curriculum was comprised chiefly of courses in agriculture, engineering, and home economics, together with the basic supporting courses in English, history, mathematics and the other arts and sciences.

From this humble beginning, the College entered upon its important career of service to the citizens of the state and particularly to the rural people who are engaged in agricultural pursuits. Although its founders had great hopes for it and for the service it might render, yet it is doubtful if they fully realized the important role the institution really would play in the lives of the rural people of the state. Neither did they realize the great responsibility that would come to be placed upon it and the dependence with which farm people would look upon it for leadership in agriculture. Only those of us at the College now can sense the great degree of responsibility that rests upon the institution and its faculty for this leadership.

To the original tract of 93 acres, some 400 acres of land have been added near the Campus for research and demonstrational purposes. Other land additions include a farm of 70 acres near Pleasant View in Weber County which is being developed for horticulture work, and 50 acres between Farmington and Kaysville in Davis County where investigations on vegetable and canning crops and on fruit diseases are being made. Experiments on dry farming have been under way in Juab County at the Nephi farm for forty years. At Cedar City, valley farm land and summer grazing lands have recently been acquired to facilitate range livestock investigations. Winter grazing land has been made available near Modena by the U. S. Grazing Service.

The expansion of the College program throughout the state was necessitated by the diversity of the agricultural industry and the great variety of problems to be solved. From its early settlement Utah has been primarily an agricultural state. Although mining produces more wealth, agriculture employs more people and is the most widespread industry in the state.

Agriculture Classified

Utah agriculture can be divided into three general classes. By far the largest area of the state, about 85 percent of the land area, is classed as grazing land and is valuable only for the raising of livestock. In the past this area has been the source of Utah's greatest agricultural income. In 1944, the cash income from cattle amounted to sixteen and one-quarter million dollars and that from sheep and wool over eighteen million dollars. Range deterioration through mismanagement and erosion has created serious conditions that must be remedied if maximum grazing capacity is to be attained.

Other lands suitable for cultivation but without irrigation facilities are used for dry farming. Here the acreage is mostly planted to winter wheat with some alfalfa and wheat-grasses. However, this area is only about one percent of the total land of the state.

The irrigated area which is a relatively small area in comparison with the grazing lands runs through the central part of the state from north to south and includes less than one and a half million acres, or 2.5 percent of the total land area. Nevertheless this is a very important area since on this land are grown the crops that supplement the feed on the range and make possible much of the livestock production. In this area is the center of the dairy and poultry industries, and of the truck and field crops and fruit production.

Nearly 50 percent of the irrigated area is in hay crops, a little less than a third is in grain, with less than 5 percent in fruits and vegetables. As larger reservoirs make more water available for irrigation, the acreage of intensive crops grown in this area is increasing. Because both land and irrigation water are expensive and farms are mostly very small, crops or livestock that yield high per-acre profits must be grown.

The past quarter of a century has seen the intensive development of the dairy and poultry industries to major importance. In 1944, the cash income from the dairy industry was approximately 25 million dollars. Since 1929 Utah has risen from the ranks of relative unimportance to the sixth largest turkey producing state in the nation. The 1944 turkey crop was valued at over eleven million dollars or equal to approximately 9 percent of the total cash farm income for the year. The total income from the poultry industry amounted to over 23 million dollars. The production of fruits and canning crops is becoming increasingly more important. In 1944 these crops were valued at nearly 18 million dollars. Problems connected with the production of all these commodities need further study.

Because of the many small diversified farms and the distance from large markets, the distribution and marketing of Utah's agricultural products have created problems many of which are still to be solved. Thus it is clear that the U. S. A. C. through its divisions or resident instruction, research and extension, has an immense responsibility in serving the agricultural industry of the state.

Teaching and Research

In the teaching division, opportunities for study are given students in the following departments: agricultural economics and marketing, agronomy and soils, animal husbandry, bacteriology and biochemistry, botany and plant pathology, dairy husbandry and manufacturing, horticulture, landscape architecture, poultry husbandry, vegetable crops, veterinary science, and zoology and entomology.

The teaching division of the school not only trains young men to become better farmers or to go out into research or other specialized fields, but it also trains teachers who return to the high schools and teach improved methods in agriculture to young boys, many of whom will never avail themselves of the opportunities of a college education. And through training these boys, many of the better methods are adopted by their fathers.

Through its research activities problems of fundamental concern in plant and animal breeding, in insect pest and disease control, in crops and soil management, in irrigation, in marketing and distribution of agricultural products are solved.

These research activities vitalize the teaching work. Most of the teaching staff spend part of their time in research and thus are able to familiarize the students with the latest developments in their fields and to instill in them attitudes of open-mindedness toward new discoveries in science. Students also get a chance to work on many of these research projects, thus getting first hand information on experimental methods and results.

Extension Service

The Extension Division conducts a broad program of adult education. Through college specialists and county agricultural and home demonstration agents located in 28 counties of the state, the latest experimental results and the best methods in farm practice are taken to farmers and housewives in the least accessible parts of the state. They are not only told what is best, but through demonstration are shown the superiority of good seed, of new and adapted varieties of crops and farm animals, of modern farm machinery in making their work more efficient, and of better soil management practices.

Extension workers also bring to the classrooms on the Campus, from their contacts throughout the state, the immediate as well as the long time needs of agriculture to keep the students informed of current trends.

Although the responsibility of the College in its leadership in agriculture is great, it is organized to meet this need. A strong teaching faculty is available to give the student the most up-to-date information on the scientific and practical aspects of agriculture. An able group of agricultural scientists is working in the laboratories and on experimental plots and fields in many areas of the state. And finally extension specialists and county agents are furnishing leadership and rendering service directly to the people in every county of the state.

Alumni Obituaries

Joel Judkins Harris, 67, died June 25 in a Salt Lake hospital of a brain tumor.

He was at the time of his death principal of the Irving lower division high school. Before that he had served as teacher and principal at Roosevelt lower division, Onequa, and Jackson school. For twenty years he served as principal in the Ogden school system.

A member of Rotary, the Bonneville Knife and Fork Club, he was also an active member of the L.D.S. church.

Survivors are his widow, Verna Barrows Harris; two sons, R. T. Harris, Salt Lake City, Robert B. Harris, specialist first class, U. S. navy, Washington, D. C.; two brothers, Robert T. Harris, New York City, and David H. Harris, San Diego, California; and a sister, Grace W. Harris, Washington, D. C.

Ivy Eustane Knudson H. Titley, 54, died at her home in the Brigham Hotel June 28. She was active in L.D.S. church circles and a member of the Brigham City First ward.

Mrs. Titley has been in the hotel business for 27 years and had operated the Brigham Hotel for several years.

She was a charter member of Sigma Theta Phi sorority, now the Chi Omega sorority.

Survivors are her husband, Edward L. Titley, Brigham; two sons Robert L. Harmon, New York City, and Cameron K. Harmon, U. S. Army; and one brother, James K. Knudson.

Robert L. Judd, prominent Salt Lake attorney and L.D.S. church leader passed away July 3, in a Salt Lake hospital of coronary occlusion.

He has practiced law in the state since 1910 and has held many responsible civic and religious positions. During 1935 and 1936 he was vice-president and a director of the metropolitan water district of Salt Lake City.

After graduation with a B.S. degree from USAC, Mr. Judd later received an L.L.B. degree at the University of Chicago. He was well known in legal circles and handled many important cases. His knowledge of corporation law made him an authority in that field.

Mr. Judd was especially interested in the college and always had time to aid any movement for the betterment of his Alma Mater. He served as a member of the board of trustees of the college and was president of the Alumni Association in 1938 and a life member.

Besides his widow, the former Mary Grant, daughter of the late Heber J. Grant, he is survived by two sons, Capt. Thomas G. Judd, and Robert L. Judd Jr., of Salt Lake City, and four daughters, Mrs. Augusta Judd Bullen and Mrs. Kathryn Judd, Fillmore, Ogden; Mrs. Marion Judd, Williams, Philadelphia, and Miss Pauline Judd.

Sibyl Spande Bowen, 48, died August 23 in Salt Lake City following an illness of six weeks.

Mrs. Bowen taught school in Salt Lake City for five years and since 1943 has been employed in the library and information department of the Salt Lake Tribune-Telegram.

She was well known for her short stories and serials. Liberty magazine, All Story, and the Chicago Daily News had published her works. A member of the League of Utah Writers and the Barnacles, Mrs. Bowen was also active in L.D.S. church affairs.

Survivors include her husband, Grant R. Bowen; two sons, Richard S. Bowen, U. S. Navy; Paul Bowen, Salt Lake City; a daughter, Claire Bowen, her mother, both of Salt Lake City, and five sisters, Mrs. Mabel Harmer, Mrs. Ruth Grant, Salt Lake City; Mrs. Dorothy Romney, San Francisco; Mrs. Margo Ball, Marysville, California; Mrs. Helen Seymour, Reno, Nevada.

Wilford Price, 49, died September 6 in a hospital at Montpelier, Idaho.

He was graduated from the Fielding Academy in 1917 and began teaching in Afton, Wyoming. Except for a period in the army during the first world war, Mr. Price has either taught or pursued education at higher institutions. After receiving an M.S. degree from Utah State he did work toward a doctorate at the universities of Utah, California, Oregon and Washington.

Many improvements in the Fielding high school at Paris, Idaho, are credited to Mr. Price. A football field, a tennis court and a remodeled gymnasium were most prominent of his achievements.

His widow Lessie Wright Price graduated from USAC in 1932. Other survivors include five sisters and six brothers.

Lydia Swenson, 44, died in the L.D.S. hospital in Salt Lake City, June 12. She had devoted her life to the teaching profession and had taught at Grace and Montpelier, Idaho; at Avon, Utah; Bingham Canyon, Utah, and was employed at Riverton, Utah when she became ill. Her high scholarship had won membership in Phi Kappa Phi, National honorary scholastic fraternity.

Before graduation from USAC, Miss Swenson had attended University of Idaho, Southern Branch, L.D.S. College and the University of Utah.

Her mother Mrs. Mary J. Swensen, three sisters, and four brothers survive.

T/4 Dean J. Athay was among the first American troops to enter Japan. Dean landed on Atsugi airbase near Tokyo before the surrender was signed. He is a radio teletype operator in the 304th Signal Operation Battalion.

Lt. Col. Richard V. Griffin, Supervisor of flying and training, Mt. Home Army Air Field, Mt. Home, Idaho.

The Big Blue Team

Aggie football prospects are looking up this year. At the end of our training camp fifty five men were in suit. Nineteen of these men had seen some kind of army or navy service.

With a few exceptions all of the fifty five are young men who will have two or three years yet to play under conference regulations. Some of these are boys who will bear watching.

Among the men who will only play this year, are such well known players as John Putnik, wingman and captain; Marvin Bell, quarterback; Paul Sanders, formerly guard and this year backfield. Other men who will bear watching this year and in the next few years and names that Aggie fans may acquaint themselves with now, are Nick Caputo, fullback from West High; Ernie Groll, halfback from Logan; Ronald Thomas, halfback from Downey, Idaho; Kever Jankovich, center from Tooele; Howard Hanson, tackle from North Cache; Ed Preece, tackle from Provo; Dean Nielsen, guard from Provo; Mickey Hughes, wingman from Ogden and played for Midway, Idaho; Elmer Skinner wingman from Utah County; Nephi Schwab, wingman from Logan; Clark Jenkins from Idaho; Don Baum from Provo; Garth Belliston, quarterback from Nephi; Farrell Purcell and Klein Purcell, backfield from the Islands; Carvel Jackson, lineman from South Cache; Dale Blackburn, quarterback from Ogden; Dale Panter, guard from Weston, Idaho; Clifford Hoopiiana, backfieldman from West High; Dean Papadakis, lineman from West High; Dale Nielson, lineman from Logan; Ray Anderson, lineman from Kamas, Utah; William Straggas, lineman from West High; Wayne Shields, lineman from Tooele; Tom Denis, backfieldman from Roosevelt; Norman Smith (small but fast and shifty), halfback from Grace, Idaho; Paul Nielson, lineman from South Cache; Robert Bates, Salt Lake City lineman; Dale Bowles, quarterback from Salt Lake City; Olien Hess, lineman from Plymouth, and a number of boys who may, in the course of another year, make football records for themselves.

This list is not all inclusive and some boys who registered late, may in a year's time make the starting lineup in their respective positions.

Following is the 1945 schedule:

Date	Name	Place
Sept. 29	Idaho Marine Devildogs 0	Logan, Utah 45
Oct. 6	Open
Oct. 13	University of Montana 13	Logan, Utah 44
